Downloading apps through Google Play

Google Play is the store for apps, movies, books and magazines on Android devices. More than one million apps are available on Google Play. Some apps are extremely useful and can act as an alarm clock, calendar or notebook. Some apps are free while some require payment.

Some useful apps that are available to download are:

- Facebook
- Instant Heart Rate
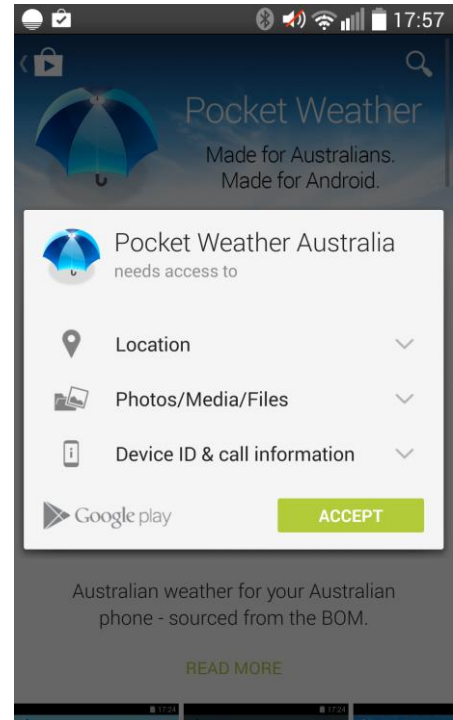

To download an app from Google Play:

1. Open the Google Play app
2. Search for the app you wish to download
3. Tap on the app you want to download

4. Tap install or the app's price

5. Review the app permissions. Each app has access to certain aspects of your device. You may not want some apps to have access to specific areas. Some apps may have permissions that cost money, such as sending text messages. If you do not want the app to have these permissions, do not download the app. For more information on app permissions, go to: https://support.google.com/googleplay/answer/6014972?hl=en-AU

6. If the app is paid, you will need to enter your password. You may also need to enter payment information. If you are worried about credit card purchases, you can buy a Google Play Gift Card.
7. The app will download. You can access the app in the app drawer.
